

V.N. Karazin Kharkiv National University, Ukraine

PhD student profile

Dmitriiev Sviatoslav is currently studying a PhD program at V.N. Karazin Kharkiv National University, School of Geology, Geography, Recreation and Tourism, Ukraine.

His research interests are mainly focused on climate changes and their impact on the water regime of rivers and the ecological state of river basins and regions.

He took part in:

- York Summer School within the framework of UK-Ukraine R&I Twinning grant in conjunction with Universities UK International Universities, UK Research and Innovation (UKRI) and Research England;
- Summer School to Create Virtual Field Trips for Inclusive Field Skill Training within the framework of the York University (Suceava, Romania, 2023);
- Research Group: Delivering Clean Green Environments (York, 2022-2024).
- Green and blue infrastructure in urban areas
- Water management
- Vulnerability of water resources
- Technical and management nature-based solutions for Kharkiv

Academic
interest:

PhD topic:

PhD
supervisor:

Climatic changes and their influence on the formation of the hydroecological state of water bodies of the transition zone "steppe-forest-steppe" (on the example of the Kharkiv region)

Svitlana Reshetchenko - PhD (Geography), Associate Professor of the Department of Physical Geography and Cartography, V. N. Karazin Kharkiv National University.